

Supplements to Pediatrics

- z Pediatrics journal subscription base is 66,000.
- z The proceedings of sponsored meetings can be accepted as supplements to Pediatrics.
- z Supplements to Pediatrics must contain material pertinent to a pediatric audience. The Academy does not print CME supplements to Pediatrics.

Supplement Costs

- z The cost to sponsor a printed supplement to Pediatrics is $975 per page (2009 pricing). This estimate includes all costs for production, copyediting, press, distribution and postage, and online production of the supplement. A budget contract estimate will be issued for your approval prior to scheduling. Also included are 100 complimentary copies of the supplement. Additional printed copies can be purchased by contacting Joseph Puskarz, Senior Managing Editor, at jpuskarz@aap.org.
- z We offer the option of publishing online-only supplements to Pediatrics. The submission and production processes are exactly the same as those supplements that are published both in print and online. The difference is that no copies of the supplement are printed—thereby eliminating costs associated with printing and postage. The cost to sponsor an online-only supplement is $485 per page (2009 pricing).
- z A 50% deposit is required at contract and before the supplement is scheduled for publication.

Conceptual Approval

- z Approval of the topic of a supplement must be obtained from Deputy Editor Dr. Virginia Moyer, prior to submission. In order to facilitate this process, we ask for a brief letter outlining the supplement, a proposed table of contents listing titles and authors of prospective papers, and a statement describing who will underwrite the cost of the supplement. This material should be sent to the deputy editor [peditriacs-editorial@bcm.edu] during the planning stages of the supplement, ideally several months prior to submission (Please note: Pediatrics does not accept supplements financed by for-profit corporations if the topics in the supplement bear close relation to the products sold by the corporation).

Submission Requirements

- z To submit the supplement after conceptual approval, please send four hard copies, plus a CD-Rom, of the entire supplement to the deputy editor at the address below. Our production team can accept material prepared using Microsoft Word, or any of the commonly used word processing programs. Material appearing in Pediatrics is subject to editorial standards specified by the American Medical Association Manual of Style (10th Edition).
- z Once the supplement is received by our deputy editor, it is sent out in its entirety to reviewers. If the supplement is provisionally accepted, revisions may be required.
- z We estimate 120 days from final acceptance to publication. This time can vary depending on the number of other supplements in production and the length of your supplement.
